Over 5,000 children die every day as a result of unsafe drinking water and lack of sanitation.

Aquae Sulis for Africa

Sending "Water of the Goddess Sulis" from the People of Bath to the Children of Africa

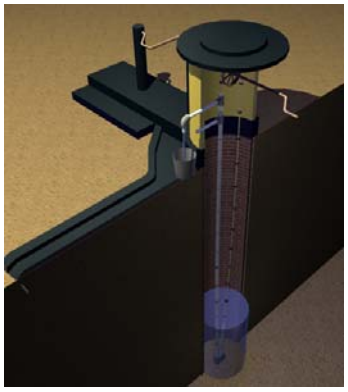
Bath is all about water. We're only here because of the water! And this water is drinkable (if a bit funny tasting) – which is something more than 1 billion people on this planet do not have. Their probable, almost certain future is thus one of illness, incomplete education and continuing poverty.



Pump Aid is a small charity which provides highly sustainable, low-cost and efficient solutions for bringing clean water, sanitation and health education to the world's poorest people, particularly children. This allows them to stay healthy, complete their education and lift their generation out of poverty for good.

Recognition of Pump Aid's innovations includes:

- 2005 St Andrews Prize for the Environment for "Elephant Pump"
- 2006 World Bank Market Place Award for Elephant Pump
- 2008 St Andrews Prize for the Environment for Elephant Toilet
- Oxfam, Save the Children, World Vision, etc., already partner with Pump Aid in southern Africa

By spreading these innovative and extremely low-cost technologies globally we can make a huge difference to the lives of hundreds of millions of people.
